

FREE!

HAPPY NEWS

WALES

Herd of goats given freedom of town

In Llandudno, Wales, over 200 mischievous goats regularly wander the streets, much to the annoyance of locals! After complaints from frustrated residents, the council ruled that the goats have the right to roam freely - as they are wild animals, it is not the council's responsibility to contain them. Here you can see them queueing up very patiently for a hair cut!

UK

Fancy a spot of 'cypher spotting'?

With the King's Coronation fast approaching, children across the UK are going 'cypher spotting' with a little help from our resources! Did you know that every postbox in the UK has a royal cypher - the initials of the King or Queen who reigned at the time it was installed? Some postbox cyphers can date back nearly 200 years - and we're on a hunt to find them. Join in at behappyresources.co.uk.

Your weekly round up of feel-good news from around the world!

USA

The amazing new Barbie doll with Down's Syndrome

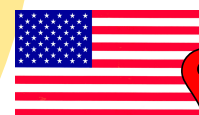

There is a new Barbie in town! Mattel, the toy company behind Barbie, has released a new doll with Down's Syndrome. Over the last few years, they have also released a doll with a hearing aid, a prosthetic leg and a wheelchair. The company says the new doll 'better reflects the world around us.'

UK

Cuthbert and Colin go head to head

A funny new tv advert from Aldi will show a confrontation between its caterpillar cake, Cuthbert, and M&S' caterpillar cake, Colin. The rivalry comes after M&S claimed Aldi copied their cake in 2021. Look out for it on TV this weekend, we guarantee a 'larva' laughs!

USA

Meet the Football playing robot

Move over Messi - engineers in California, USA, have created a full sized humanoid robot that can play football. The robot, named ARTEMIS, is one of only three robots in the world that can run. Engineers are so confident in the robot's ability that they have signed it up for this year's Robocup - an international football competition just for robots!

